Mary, the Saints and Angels Series...

St. Peter Chanel

The Martyr Peter Chanel is the patron saint of Aotearoa, New Zealand because he served as a missionary to the southwest Pacific region, together with another clergyman from France, John Baptist Pompallier, who became the first bishop of New Zealand.

While Peter was in his late teens, Bishop Louis DuBourg sent letters from his St. Louis, Missouri home to France. These touched Peter, who desired to give his life to this kind of service. He was ordained a priest for the Diocese of Belley, France, not far from Ars, where St. John Vianney had recently become the local cure. Peter's bishop did not support his idea of serving abroad. In 1833, Peter joined some priests forming a new religious order, the Society of Mary (Marists). They share his enthusiasm for the missions. Several years later, Peter finally traveled with other Marists from France to Chile, where they embarked on a mission to the Pacific Islands. Surely none of them had any idea of the vast territory they had come to evangelize.

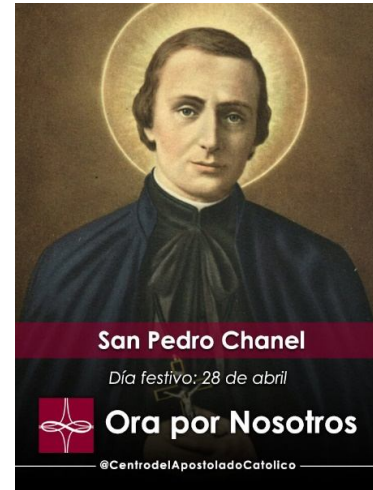

On the Island of Futana, Peter had to learn the language and expressed his frustration at not having the words to proclaim the Gospel he loved. Eventually he won converts. However, in 1841 the island's king became suspicious of the missionaries' intentions, and when his son requested Baptism, the king dispatched servants who attacked the catechumens and clubbed Peter to death. The Catholic faith immediately took root on the island. Over 95% of its inhabitants today are Catholic.

St. Peter Chanel is honored on the Catholic Church's liturgical calendar throughout the world on April 28, which always falls during the Easter season. The Collect at Mass acknowledges the paschal joy of the Church. It prays that those who celebrate the death and resurrection of Christ may be ready to bear witness too.

Mary, the Saints and Angels Series...

San Pedro Chanel

El mártir Peter Chanel es el santo patrón de Aotearoa, Nueva Zelanda, porque sirvió como misionero en la región del Pacífico suroeste, junto con otro clérigo de Francia, John Baptist Pompallier, quien se convirtió en el primer obispo de Nueva Zelanda.

Cuando Peter era un adolescente, el obispo Louis DuBourg envió cartas desde su casa en St. Louis, Missouri, a Francia. Esto conmovió a Pedro, que deseaba dar su vida a este tipo de servicio. Fue ordenado sacerdote para la diócesis de Belley, Francia, no lejos de Ars, donde recientemente San Juan Vianney se había convertido en cura local. El obispo de Pedro no apoyó su idea de servir en el extranjero. En 1833, Peter se unió a algunos sacerdotes formando una nueva orden religiosa, la Sociedad de María (Maristas). Comparten su entusiasmo por las misiones. Varios años después, Peter finalmente viajó con otros maristas de Francia a Chile, donde se embarcaron en una misión en las islas del Pacífico. Seguramente ninguno de ellos tenía idea del vasto territorio que habían venido a evangelizar.

En la isla de Futana, Peter tuvo que aprender el idioma y expresó su frustración por no tener las palabras para proclamar el Evangelio que amaba. Finalmente ganó adeptos. Sin embargo, en 1841 el rey de la isla empezó a sospechar de las intenciones de los misioneros, y cuando su hijo solicitó el bautismo, el rey envió sirvientes que atacaron a los catecúmenos y mataron a golpes a Pedro. La fe católica se arraigó inmediatamente en la isla. Más del 95% de sus habitantes hoy son católicos.

San Pedro Chanel es honrado en el calendario litúrgico de la Iglesia Católica en todo el mundo el 28 de abril, que siempre cae durante la temporada de Pascua. La Colecta en la Misa reconoce el gozo pascual de la Iglesia. Reza para que aquellos que celebran la muerte y resurrección de Cristo estén dispuestos a dar testimonio también.
